@Value-annotated multi-way getter I have a property that can be set by using the @Value annotation or set in a @Bean method. I'd like to use the same getter in both places, just for readability. Is there a way to do this? I tried using two methods to get the same result. The problem is, I'd like to be able to use @Value on a method rather than a property. So something like this (in pseudo code, but works): @Value("#{MyBean.getProperty('value')}") public static final String TEMP_STRING = "foo"; @Bean public String getProperty() { return TEMP_STRING; } @Value("#{MyBean.setProperty('value')}") public void setProperty() { TEMP_STRING = "bar"; } A:
This works for me: @Value("#{getProperty()}") public static final String TEMP_STRING = "foo"; @Bean public String getProperty() { return TEMP_STRING; } @Value("#{setProperty()}") public void setProperty() { TEMP_STRING = "bar"; } Nuštra Šumic Nuštra Šumic () is a municipality in
