The town is also connected to Northampton by the A45 and A45 dual carriageway linking it to the A45 and A14/M1 and also by A422 linking it with the East Midlands Airport and Nottingham. The town is served by the East Midlands Airport providing air links to London, Birmingham and Manchester. By road Alton is about from junction 28 of the M1 and connected to Northampton, Milton Keynes and London by the A422. By rail there is a daily service from Northampton to Birmingham or Derby on West Coast Trains and regular services to Peterborough, Nottingham, Grantham, Hitchin and Cambridge. Alton was an early centre of railway development and in 1821 Alton Corporation built the first purpose-built railway station on the Haughley to Market Harborough line. The station is a Grade II listed building and is the oldest purpose built railway station in the UK. With the opening of this the railway reached Northampton. The railway depot is still used by the British Rail network.

It also has a large goods yard on the SE corner where goods trains used to arrive daily. This depot was used until the end of the 2010 UK winter timetable. Notable residents Of note, Alton, like its nearest town Northampton, is home to bands such as the Human League, The Lambrettas, and The Bad Seeds. Alton is also known for its connection to naturalists writer Richard Dawkins. He was born on 6 April 1941, not in Alton as is often believed, but at Fonthill, near Alton. There is a central area to Alton surrounded by areas of semi-rural housing. There is a small shopping area and in the middle there is a wide array of businesses. It is sometimes said to be in the West Riding of Yorkshire, although that region is in the West Midlands. Sport The town has three non-League football clubs. Alton Town, Alton Wanderers and Alton United. The Alton Hockey Club is an active hockey club. The Alton rugby club gained promotion to the Midlands Premier division of the English Rugby Union League System for the 2009–10 season. It is also home to Northampton Sporting R.F.C., a rowing club which was
